This is not a study but a well intentioned article to share new technique in the placement of PDO threads. I suggest this article be submitted as a letter rather than a peer review study as it is not a study. What is needed next is perhaps a review/ audit of the procedure after perhaps 100 cases to see if there are any complications, effectiveness and duration of effectiveness? Another suggestion is to conduct a prospective study to compare this technique against a more commonly used technique to see if your technique is superior in effectiveness and has less complications.

Thank you for sharing this technique. It is an interesting read.
