

Review of: "Mitigating organizational decision making amidst the dragging effect"

Yi Zhu<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Northwestern University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. I am not sure if it's a paper introducing a new method or a paper doing a summary survey. If it's planned to introduce a new method, please highlight the methodology in a single section and elaborate its novelty. If it's a survey, a more detailed description of how existing works are connected will be helpful and some in-depth insight can also be contribution to the community.
2. Some arguments like "Foresight is used to map potential future trajectories that will result in business opportunities in operations and strategic decision-making" can be well extended to different industries, like finance, health care or artificial intelligence. It would be more persuasive and informative by giving more specific examples and references, rather than giving a general assessment.
3. From paper writing perspective, it's generally organized, but pay attention to grammar and citation norms. For example, I can see both "(French and RioosInsua, 2000)" and "(Jungwon Park & Keon-Hyung Lee, 2020)", which is not consistent.