

Open Peer Review on Qeios

Sparsely Granulated Lactotroph Adenoma

National Cancer Institute

Source

National Cancer Institute. Sparsely Granulated Lactotroph Adenoma. NCI Thesaurus. Code C45932.

A prolactin producing pituitary gland adenoma composed of relatively large, chromophobic or slightly acidophilic cells with well developed, abundant endoplasmic reticulum, and many immature secretory granules. Mature secretory granules are sparse.