First of all, thank you for inviting me to review this manuscript.

The manuscript presents a very interesting topic, is well written, and is presented clearly. I believe that the methodology used in this work is very appropriate for the topic and the perspective it intends to assume.

However, there are some issues on which I would like to have more information to evaluate the results, specifically information regarding sampling decisions. There are two variables about which I have seen no information: class/social position and cultural level/education. What is the social class of the women interviewed? What is the cultural level? I mean, what other criteria have been taken into account, besides age and the city where they reside? What was being sought, homogeneity or heterogeneity?

Finally, in my opinion, the article deserves to be published.
