

Review of: "Ancient Houses in Ben Tre City: A Multifaceted Approach to Preserve Artistic Architectural Heritage and Boost Local Tourism"

Asmita Basu<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Army Institute of Management

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The authors have discussed in detail the cultural exuberance of the ancient houses in Ben Tre City. The heritage value and historical significance of these ancient houses are explicit in the research article. The tourism potential thus indicated in this article can be further substantiated with visitor data. The legal aspects are also pointed out for conserving such ancient houses. The consequences of the demolition of the French public office building and its impact on the sustainable development of heritage sites in Ben Tre City are noteworthy.

In essence, the article is poised to make a substantial contribution to the realm of cultural heritage management, offering valuable insights and proving advantageous for both readers and researchers engaged in this field.