The topic is highly interested and is a core issue in the public health. However, few observations that are noted.

1. The introduction should have a narrative of the subject of interest from other continents or nations
2. The limitations of the study should be added to the end of the discussion.
3. The methods should be specified and written clearly showing the steps taken. Data collection should be explained clearly.
4. The ethical review for the study should be included
5. discussion should be based on the data collection. The strengths and limitations of the study should be added at the end of the discussion section.
6. The conclusion should be reconstructed based on the results and the discussions, in a concise manner, having the recommendations for the study added at the end of the conclusion section.
7. All references used must be properly written in form of APA.
