I consider the article to be very interesting, though first of all I would recommend the authors to pay more attention to the formal structure and final revisions - the little mistakes are quite annoying when reading (for example Figure 1 - structure of...small letter s, etc.). These little inaccuracies occur in the whole text. When examining the quality of the research presented, we have to realize, there are some description-analytical methods used, but the informative value is not too high. The authors summarize the statistics into the figures and tables, the data are presented as the summary of questionnaire results, which is missing the deeper content. The added value is missing as well as the origin attitude of the authors. I would consider this study to be the base for the further research of the authors, not the result of their research.
