

Review of: "Assessing the Role of Consumer Cooperatives in Improving Livelihood of the Members of Hawassa Zuria Woreda, Sidama Regional State, Ethiopia"

Satya Subrahmanyam¹

¹ Holy Spirit University of Kaslik

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Assessing the Role of Consumer Cooperatives in Improving Livelihood of the Members of Hawassa Zuria Woreda, Sidama Regional State, Ethiopia

Abstract: The abstract provides a comprehensive overview of the article, addressing key sections relevant to the title. It effectively outlines the purpose, methodology, and findings of the study, providing a clear snapshot of the research.

Keywords: The chosen keywords align well with the theme of the article and aid in indexing and retrieving the document.

Introduction: The introduction sets the stage effectively, providing context for the study. However, it lacks a clearly stated hypothesis, which would enhance the clarity of the research objectives. Additionally, introducing the research questions would provide further structure to the study, particularly considering the mixed-method approach employed.

Review of Literature: The review of literature is minimal and fails to adequately cover all relevant variables and factors. A more comprehensive discussion of existing research would provide a stronger theoretical foundation for the study. Additionally, the absence of a theoretical or conceptual framework is noted, which could have guided the analysis and interpretation of the findings.

Methodology: The methodology section adequately covers the necessary components, considering the mixed-method approach utilized in the study. However, clarity is needed regarding the discrepancy between the stated sample size and the actual number of respondents from whom data was collected. Furthermore, while quantitative analysis is mentioned, the absence of thematic analysis, as indicated by the mixed-method approach, is a notable gap in the methodology section.

Results: The discrepancy between the stated sample size and the actual number of respondents raises concerns about the accuracy of the findings. Moreover, while the analysis of two variables through quantitative methods is presented, the absence of thematic analysis, as suggested by the mixed-method approach, limits the depth of the results interpretation.

Conclusion: The introductory statement in the conclusion contradicts the title of the article, indicating a lack of coherence between the sections. This discrepancy undermines the overall effectiveness of the conclusion in summarizing the study's findings and their implications.

Overall, while the article addresses the topic of consumer cooperatives in improving livelihoods effectively, several areas require further development and clarity to enhance the rigor and impact of the research.