Thank you for inviting me to review the manuscript 'The Parental Role in Child Sexuality: A Phenomenological Study'. The topic is very interesting and the authors' efforts are greatly appreciated. However, the authors should take some considerations such as the following before publication:

- I recommend summarizing the article's introduction. It is necessary to join several paragraphs using different conjunctions.
- In abstract, keywords are not provided.
- What were the theoretical frameworks on which the authors based the instrument?
- The results should to be compared to other research findings in the literature.
- The discussion ought to be enriched with the existing theory.
- What are the implications of the study?
- Limitations of the study are not provided.
- References and citations should follow the journal's APA style.

Kind regards
