I congratulate the authors on choosing this very topical subject.

My suggestions relate to the results:

- I suggest that all the results (answers to the questions) be presented in a table and that the obtained results be compared with the results of other authors below the table (discussion).
- The conclusion is that there is a connection between job and monthly income with habits related to nutrition and physical activity, although this is not shown in the results.

If this analysis has been done, it should be presented in the results, and if not, then the conclusions should be corrected, and conclusions should be drawn from what the research has shown.
