Sandip Som

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

a) It is understandable what the authors try to convey. They are confusing between landslide hazard and landslide risk and as such they are using these terms interchangeably.

b) The authors does not have their own data to describe. They have only tried to give information on the different methods available without any systematic descriptions shows pros and cons of each methods. Moreover, their references are not upto data. For example recent paper published by Som et al , J. Earth Syst. Sci. (2023) 132:16 showing a different methodology has not been incorporated. They should strengthen their reference inventory showing different type modelling methodologies without adding unnecessary references.

c) The manuscript in its present form is not acceptable unless it is prepared as per points a & b.
