I thank the authors for their effort in preparing this manuscript, and offer some recommendations:

In Introduction: The authors should identify the gaps in existing research and explain why their study is necessary. Currently, this aspect is not adequately addressed. Furthermore, the authors need to clearly state their research objectives and purpose.

In Literature Review: The authors should conduct a more comprehensive literature review to gain a deeper understanding of research gaps and content.

In Method: The authors need to provide details about the following: The timing and methodology of the survey, how the measurement instruments were modified.

In Discussion and Conclusion: The authors lack a foundation for comparing and contrasting their findings. They are also unable to offer theoretical and practical implications based on their results.

In References: Many references mentioned in the text are absent from the reference list. Furthermore, several of these references may be outdated and no longer relevant.
