

Review of: "Detection and Correction of Likert Scale Multiplicative Response-Style Bias"

Yuntong Li¹

¹ Independent researcher

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The topic is definitely interesting, and the paper is well written. Here are two minor comments.

1. Was the response variable treated as ordinal? Could you provide an example of how the responses were linearly transformed to the unit interval $[0, 1]$? Adding some details here would be helpful for the readers.
2. In real data analyses, the variances in the correlation metrics are all estimated to be 1. Are these actual estimated values? Please clarify.