

Review of: "Notes on the morphological features of cotyledonary dissecting leiomyoma, which is rare in clinical practice"

Mana Taki¹

¹ Kyoto University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Overall, this article is well written and deserves publication. It would be better if the following points were modified.

1. The authors describe Ye H's case in detail before presenting their own case. It would be easier to understand if they presented their case first and then discussed Ye's case in a later chapter.
2. They didn't describe tumor marker in their case. Also, this case showed abnormal vaginal bleeding. They should state if this woman was menopausal and if they know her hormone levels and reason for abnormal vaginal bleeding.

Thank you for giving me the opportunity to review the article.