In general, we support research that looks at data that is written in Kurdish. Before the research is approved for publication on the platform, it needs to go through a number of revisions.1. Be careful to be accurate when writing in English. Language has to be improved.2- When writing the abstract, the problem is presented first, followed by a suggested solution, and last, a concise description of the results.3. When writing the related work, an explanation of the method that using in the earlier study is addressed, as well as clarification of the benefits and drawbacks of this research, while addressing the researcher's result.4- Figure No. 1 contains a mistake. , the data divided should be after feature extraction5- The written conclusions are a mention of the data that the researcher used and a review of the results of the algorithms that were used, and they cannot be conclusion.
