Thank you for the opportunity to read this very interesting article. It is well-written and highlights the main issues that technology advancement arises in today's world of work. Some small recommendations:

- A less extensive historical review would make the article more concise and to the point.
- Maybe it would be better to have a clearly distinct separate part in each sub-chapter dedicated just to Nigeria and its labour market. Now, in the same sub-chapter there are information that apply to the whole world and information that apply only to Nigeria.
- Authors should consider adding a comment regarding the role of career education and career guidance in reducing the Skill Mismatch.
