

Peer Review

Review of: "Reporting and Subjectivity Traps: A Brief Opinion Article on Consciousness as Belief"

Daniel Rueda Garrido¹

1. Hebei Normal University, Shijiazhuang, China

This article is an improvement from the last version uploaded.

The concepts and assumptions they worked with are better defined and developed.

The topic is quite interesting, and there is a lot of research on it, at least since 18th-century materialism and the 20th-century debate on physicalism and dualism, emergentism, functionalism, and the analytical philosophy of mind. The article briefly addresses the fundamental issues of this debate, and it is well accomplished.

Declarations

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.