

Review of: "Sacred Plants and Their Miraculous or Healing Properties"

Kewal Kumar

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The manuscript entitled, "Sacred Plants and Their Miraculous or Healing Properties," is an interesting topic chosen by the author, but before publication, it needs some improvements. The manuscript is a review article and mainly focused on two plants, Atropa mandragora and Peyote, but it also includes lots of information regarding other psychoactive plants that makes it so lengthy. I suggested that the unnecessary information should be reduced. The title of the manuscript may also be modified and related to the main plants that are discussed in detail. The table of contents seems inappropriate; the titles and subtitles need to be reframed. In the materials and methods section, there are no methods discussed about data collection, sources of information, or literature consulted. The results and discussion parts may be presented together, and unnecessary pictures and figures may be removed. The author is suggested to go through some more review articles of such type from some good journals, including Springer and Elsevier, and may reframe the article so that it may deem fit for publication.