

Review of: "Water-Energy Nexus in Power Systems: A Review"

Yang Yang

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. Introduction. Authors should reinforce research motivation from the outset. Although this is a review, authors should indicate what questions they are trying to explore and understand.
2. The author seems to have just made a series of lists of existing research, and this story-by-story narrative cannot provide deeper insights. I recommend that authors consider using some common review methods, such as a systematic literature review.
3. Building on the second point, I suggest that the authors reconsider the policy implications they propose to ensure that the review of existing literature has more theoretical and practical significance.