

Review of: "Online learning during the COVID-19 pandemic, lessons learned and what's next?"

Bartosz Sawik<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> University of California, Berkeley

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Paper requires revision before publication.

A point-by-point list of constructive recommendations for the improvement of the manuscript are presented below:

1. Authors should clearly explain what is the breakthrough in this paper.
2. Authors should define, what is new and unique compared to other published papers about the same research topic.
3. I recommend to add following paper <https://doi.org/10.3390/healthcare9091147> to Introduction and Reference sections.
4. Authors should clearly stated, what the paper has been prepared without help of ChatGPT.
5. I recommend expanding and later dividing section "Conclusion" to subsections, or dividing into to sections, one detailed conclusions about results and second with general conclusions of the paper. At the moment the Conclusions section is very generic and rather short.
6. Additionally, the text should be checked for spelling and grammar before publication.