This is a very relevant, well written and motivating to read. It flows well too. However, there is need for expanding on what VC entails, how they were designed, tested and rolled out across different ages. As much as this is a commentary, Methodology section also need to be expanded, e.g., target population, sampling and limitations. More detail is also required on the quotes/voice provided. Additionally, there is need for a clear conclusion and recommendations for VC practice and/or further research.
