

Review of: "Use of Digital Platforms Among University Students: A Systematic Literature Review"

Evans Wema¹

¹ University of Dar es Salaam

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Use of Digital Platforms Among University Students: A Systematic Literature Review

This article has addressed various issues regarding the use of digital platforms in assisting university students in their studies and the challenges they faced. Relevant databases were consulted to support the study approach used.

Some of the earlier comments in the areas of abstract, introduction, methodology, findings, and discussion have been observed.

The authors have made improvements to the article as per the comments provided in the previous submission. As such, the work can proceed for further editorial processes.