

Review of: "[Review Article] How to Form the Human Brain"

Ferihan Ahmed-Popova¹

¹ Medical University Plovdiv

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The submitted manuscript "How to Form the Human Brain" is a review article on questions related to the molding of the brain, suggesting a framework for improving society. The main idea is correctly presented with detailed data on brain plasticity and strategies for enhancing society by tweaking behavioral propensities. The main idea of the study is correctly methodologically constructed and presented, and is supported by sufficient literature data in the bibliography. The quality of the writing is highly satisfactory, and the content of the manuscript would be of great interest to the general and scientific audience.

In conclusion, the article presents a unique way of analyzing the potential of the human brain to improve life in various aspects of the modern age, including the creation of a more beneficial society, as the author suggests concrete ways and directs the reader's attention to desirable features and aspects of human life.