

Review of: "Knowledge among Health care workers (HCWs) regarding biomedical waste management (BMW) during COVID-19 Pandemic"

Sandip Das Sanyam

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The methodology is not clear, ethical approval and consent information is missing, it doesn't address things like, who conducted the study, how were the questions asked, how different was it presented to sanitary staffs and doctors, what was the language of question, was it paper based or recorded or a verbal, how were the questions adapted under what criteria? How were sample size calculated, if not calculated how are the results generalized? What about reliability and validity of the questionnaire?

In sampling the authors says everyone were selected for the questionnaire but in summary it says random selection of areas, this makes the statement biased. Methodology nowhere talks about the sample selection.