1. Kindly find other specific references. Avoid self-referencing.
2. Need more specific explanation about challenges and threats of the One Health approach, especially in Indonesia: the changes in our environment, mainly caused by human activities, and the evolution of interactions between humans and animals, are, and will undoubtedly be, responsible for sanitary crises.
3. What are specific activities/supports/policies/responsibilities that can be applied in the human, animal, environmental, and welfare sectors?
4. Authors can add a district/sub-district that has already applied the One Health approach; this can be a good example.
