The abstract should include the following components: background/introduction, objective/purpose, methodology, results, conclusion, significance/contribution, and keywords. This will provide a comprehensive summary of the study.

The methodology section should be more specific in explaining how the author collected data on chatbots and how these data were synthesized.

The discussion part is missing: Address the study questions first and link the results to previous research findings in the discussion section. This will provide answers to the missing study questions and establish connections with existing research.

Ensure that the manuscript includes a section for study limitations and recommendations, and pedagogical implications. These sections are currently absent.
