

Review of: "Applying User-Centered Design Methods to Improve The Experience of the NHS APP"

Nicola Cobelli¹

¹ University of Verona

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

I thank the Author/s for this insightful recreation. No changes are needed, in my opinion. This is a paper that uses a method that straddles the line between qualitative and experimental. The article is well understood, there is a logical thread, and the results are clearly illustrated. The literature review also seems timely. If the journal accepts this method/s, which is by no means a given for many journals, I recommend accepting the paper.