

Review of: "The tumour microenvironment in BRCA1/BRCA2 hereditary breast cancer and the role of epigenetics in its regulation"

Niyaz Naykoo<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Cluster University Srinagar

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Though article is well written, however i recommend major revision of of the article before it is published and some points are mentioned below which must be included in the final article:

- Include pictures showing pathways of BRCA1/BRCA2 genes in breast cancer.
- Angiogenesis and its role in pathogenesis of Breast cancer.
- Figures with respect Breast cancer have not been icluded in the article.