Thank you for considering me to review this article. First of all, I would like to congratulate the author on this concise perspective article. Here are a few points that I think need to be addressed.

1. It's always better to incorporate the latest data, which will help readers and concerned authorities get a clearer insight into the increasing trends of methamphetamine abuse.
2. This article should also have explored the major factors contributing to the increased abuse of methamphetamine in recent years.
3. It would have been better if this article mentioned what excellent work the drugs and narcotics department and security forces of Bangladesh are doing.
4. This article should also have highlighted what initiatives the government of Bangladesh needs to take in addition to drawing attention to concerned authorities.
