

Review of: "Diversity and Inclusion for Innovation-Led Growth"

Silvia Rueda Pascual<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad de Valencia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is an opinion article and, although it includes some relevant facts and comments, it does not carry out any scientific study.

It could be interesting to analyze the evolution in recent years of the gender situation in higher education in India. The authors could study, for instance, whether the policies carried out have had an impact. For this purpose, it would be necessary to provide statistical data and some graphs to show the results and the possible evolution over time, in addition to, of course, describing the methodology carried out and the object to be evaluated.