This is super interesting. I would advise the writer to check the way the worldwide data and Nigerian data are presented in the reading. There seems to be some confusion.

I think the writing could also benefit from some transitions.

I would like a citation for the claim that suicide rates were alarming during the data collection period.

Why does it say P2 concerns a woman who died by suicide? This is under background. P2 is clearly a male? I'm confused.

I would love more citations throughout. Also, more information about the data collection.

Lastly, what do we learn about theory?
