This research is good, but there are several things that need to be completed so that readers understand and the article can be used as a reliable reference. Here I describe the things that need to be completed, namely:

introduction

1. We recommend that an in-depth theoretical study is presented in this study, it will further convince the reader that this research has the right reference.

2. explain which part will be developed into an instrument, what factors are involved (this explanation is useful for readers to know this CFA test for any factor in this instrument, if possible explain briefly because this article only explains the results of CFA analysis not an article about instrument development)

Study design

if using a cross-sectional study, explain what the design looked like, the flow of the design or step by step. I think it needs to be explained in detail because an article will be quoted a lot because of a clear explanation.

should include references whose critical values or limit values come from CFI, GFI, AGFI, NFI, SRMR, CN, RSMEA. because to my knowledge it has multiple versions. Please include which reference you used Hopefully a little input from me is useful for improving this article.
