

Review of: "Paulian Approach to Critical Thinking: Assessing an Intervention Program"

Arita Marini¹

¹ Universitas Negeri Jakarta

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The abstract section should clearly state the contribution of this research and what research gap it addresses. Authors should integrate the literature with the finding to provide a coherent argument in favor of the proposed research provided.

The introduction needs to be further developed to clearly establish the rationale/importance of the new initiative and clearly state the problem and objectives of the research; these must relate specifically to the questions and issues involved. The introduction would benefit from a brief description of the manuscript's topic and greater emphasis on the problem the study addresses. The importance of research also needs to be stated more clearly and, in more depth, and perhaps an example should be given here. Try to include some latest journal article references published from 2020-2023 in the specific areas to improve the relevance and currency of the research. Extended literature review would help you also with addressing the issue of contribution of the manuscript. Authors should provide more convincing arguments and documentation of the originality and the value of this particular research. A coherent presentation and interpretation of the findings and provide an argument that supports the significance of the research in comparison to what is already known about this research problem.