

Review of: "The Evolution of Adult Learners' Roles: A Case Study of an English Teacher's Transformative Journey"

Olivier Lefebvre<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> National University of Singapore

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper deals with the topic of adult learning as being the fruit of a transformative journey where experience plays a significant role. In the first half of the paper, the author (which one by the way? There two authors but the paper is written in the single person) describes his/her own experience as an English teacher who had to overcome a lot of difficulties before becoming an accomplished individual through the experience acquired on the way. In the second part, the author relates his/her personal experience to the broader topic of adult education by proposing 6 roles that the adult learners should undertake in order to progress on their lifelong learning pathway. This second part would be stronger if it were anchored within one or several pedagogical theoretical frameworks, in order to distinguish between a personal experience and more general considerations applicable to a broader community.