

Review of: "Unraveling Populism: Senator Fraser Anning and the Australian Political Landscape"

Dawisson Lopes

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This piece exhibits an abundance of descriptive content but lacks substantial academic references, with the sole citation being Cheok, A. D. (2021). The overall argument remains unclear, as the author predominantly focuses on retrieving fragments of Senator Fraser Anning's speeches and a limited number of biographical details. A more effective strategy would involve adopting a comparative approach, given the contemporary prevalence of political populism on a global scale. Additionally, the absence of a theoretical framework is a notable limitation in this article.