The manuscript deals with interesting topic of antibacterial resistance and overcoming it by essential oils. There are some issue of this review:

1. The authors should focus on how the herbal extracts were applied (in vitro or in vivo) studies?
2. The authors should supply the review by a table to identify the effective concentrations of these herbal materials.
3. The authors should mention the nature of herbal products that used (crude extract, essential oil or active ingredient of these herbal products).
