Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

A very informative study. The topic is well researched, and meaningful insights can be drawn from the study.

However, the following suggestions are made to the authors:

1. Introduction section: There has to be a difference between literature review and introduction. In the intro section, we justify the study and identify the research gap. The research gap is not well justified in its present shape.

2. Literature review:

Most of the studies referred to are from local Iranian sources. A good research paper cites papers across international boundaries.

3. Method: Even though the statistical tools are well adopted for the study, high-end statistical techniques and testing hypotheses can draw more in-depth information from the study.

Overall, however, the study is meaningful and informative.
