Very good ideas written in this article. The research is very well structured and explained with clear models. The TAM model used is a conventional information systems theory for understanding human behavior regarding why new technologies are accepted or rejected by users. For the researcher, it is a very good basis for the development of the model, so that he can make better use of it later. The other methods are also clearly explained and provide a good overview of the later processed results. And the conclusion clearly shows the directions for further research.
