

Review of: "The Failure of Diplomatic Mediations in the Syrian Conflict – A Comparative Analysis"

Ibrahim S.I. Rabaia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper deals with an important and interesting topic, The methodology is clear and leads to a well-structured paper.

The historical background gives the reader a sufficient overview of the context and the phases of the Syrian conflict. However, the paper has inflated the sect system of Syria before 2011.

It is important to mention 2015 as a turning point in the conflict when the Syrian army lost most of the land before the Russian intervention.

The conceptual and theoretical frameworks are well-designed and organized, both meet the comparative analysis needs and are implemented in analyzing the mediation attempts.

The author utilized sufficient resources in general, but some important references are missed.