The study of Green creatures of the nature on environment especially in rapidly changing climate scenario is the need of hour. The current study is a chunk of the theme, hence important for international community. The article is a kind of report written extensively.

I suggest major revisions to qualify it for a standard scientific article.

1. Abstract is too long with a lack of coherence in the statements with language corrections needed.
2. Introduction should be merged with literature review. There is no literature review section in standard articles.
3. The data and methods should be made clear avoiding unnecessary details.
4. The Results section should be given more focus and time as compared to literature review.
5. The conclusion section may be elaborated with the main outcomes.
6. The recommendation section may be merged with conclusion. There may be a statement at the end revealing limitation to the study.
7. Acknowledgement may not be too much descriptive and long.
8. There is an immense need of language rectifications.
