

Review of: "Factors contributing to labour unrest at the garment factories in Bangladesh: A cross-sectional study"

Bee Wah Tan¹

¹ Universiti Utara Malaysia

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

1. Abstract should not report specific empirical results in statistical terms. Instead, they should provide a concise summary of the study's purpose, methods, key findings, and conclusions. The abstract should be a brief and clear overview of the research, allowing readers to understand the study's objectives and outcomes without delving into the specific numerical results. This abstract also lacks a clear statement of the implications of the findings and any specific recommendations for stakeholders or policymakers.
2. The introduction could be further enhanced by explicitly mentioning the study's contributions.
3. The literature review could be further enhanced by conducting a more thorough and up-to-date review of past studies, incorporating recent developments and international perspectives, and organizing the information within a comprehensive framework. Ensuring that the research is grounded in the latest and most relevant scholarship is crucial for producing an impactful study on labor unrest in Bangladesh's garment sector.
4. Including a research concept design diagram is highly advisable.
5. Providing specific details regarding the total sample size and the collected questionnaire is essential in a research paper.