The title does not match the description in the work; a case study is mentioned, and there is a review that includes different fly ash applications. The information described in the text must be verified with the composition table. A summary of each article consulted is presented; it is suggested to group by application, properties, process, etc. After the review, the authors indicate that a conclusion cannot be reached on the replacement of asphalt with fly ash; a better analysis of the information presented is recommended.
