

Review of: "Shopping bags: own or plastic? Theoretical explanation of pro-environment consumer behavior in Vietnam"

Macarena Torroba Diaz<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Universidad de Málaga

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The paper presents a good level in its initial submission, and as it stands, I find it almost acceptable for publication with minor revisions. This article very clearly outlines the relationships between environmental attitudes, actions, norms, control, intention, and environmental behaviors of customers frequenting the supermarkets participating in the study.

The authors need to provide better motivation for the chosen methodology. The results are clearly presented in the results section, but I believe that the discussion section needs improvement. Furthermore, I encourage the authors to expand the results section and to interpret the results in the context of similar studies that either confirm or refute their own results more clearly.