This is a splendid short communication that advocates for the OneHealth approach to be introduced as a general strategy for combating mosquito-borne diseases in Indonesia, with a special emphasis on malaria. The language used throughout the manuscript is exquisite, and, being a OneHealth pioneer, I couldn't agree more with the recommendations. My only concern is with the usage of the term OneHealth itself. It is written in every possible way throughout the many publications that mention the concept, while we are trying to standardize it down to "OneHealth". Please change to the exact writing of "OneHealth" throughout the manuscript, including the title and the illustration. When this is done, my recommendation is to simply publish.
