

Review of: "Effective Communication in Virtual Project Teams at Children Mission Africa: A Short Communication"

Rinaldo Zanini<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Istituto Giannina Gaslini

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

Unusual, in my experience, article and dealing with a topic that is not frequently addressed.

I think that this issue will become more and more topical in relation to the development of tools in electronic communications and the emergence of increasingly complex projects.

I think a greater and more precise description of the survey method would be very useful and would add value to the article.

I think it would also be useful to mention the need to define more precisely the type of projects that are thought of in order to better define the communicative setting.

It is also useful to underline the need to identify listening techniques and to identify the different needs in order to improve the ability to disseminate and share information.

At least in some advanced situations, a hint of artificial intelligence is useful.