Thank you for the opportunity. I suggest a couple of changes to this thesis rather than the article.

1. Format the article to improve flow and clarity. Look at the tenses used and the structure needed.
2. In the literature review, multiple articles are mentioned but there is no indication of outcome measures used - e.g., to measure improved cognitive function. Even if the design is qualitative, what were the assumptions (ontological, epistemological, methodological, etc.) and how did they pull through to the results?
3. Only two participants for interviews is a very small study population and not representative enough to yield any significant findings or trustworthiness.
4. For the case study, how will you measure the effects of the laughter therapy? Please provide more detail but also anonymise the patient.

All the best on an interesting topic.
