Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This article provides an interesting insight into Russian patents. It also poses a challenge to patent development in the Ukrainian Russian agitation.

The data source is rich, but the data source must be more valid.

It is necessary to be clear about the method used with valid data.

In the discussion, it is necessary to make a more in-depth analysis and reason for strong causality between the development of Russian patents and the effects that occur.

In the conclusion, there should be more focus on the answer to the problem statement.
