

Review of: "[Mini Review] Application of Eastern Philosophical Principles to Ethical Dilemmas in Daily Medical Practice"

Harleen Sahni<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> Punjab Agricultural University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

While I do not have any disagreements with the content, I have some suggestions to improve the paper further.

1. Some of the practical issues in the integration of Eastern ethical principles into clinical practice, like lack of training and educational resources, as well as the lack of research into the added value of such integration, need to be addressed.
2. Only one case study has been mentioned; if possible, you can mention more in order to flesh out the process of integration of these values in medical practice that has been attempted thus far. I am not aware of more case studies, but it would be very interesting to see if there are any more out there.