Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

- The abstract should be neat and precise. The salient features of the findings must be reported briefly in the conclusion.
- Clarifies the novelty of the study objectives by highlighting the necessity of further studies in the field.
- Summarises recent research related to the topic.
- They should evaluate the trends observed and explain the significance of the results to a wider audience. This can only be done by referencing published research.
- Adding block diagrams and tables would certainly be of interest.
- They ought to assess the patterns seen and clarify the importance of the findings for a broader audience. The only way to achieve this is to refer to published studies.
- A critical study of the gathered data needs to be the result.
