Thanks for efforts of the researcher, I think the article is useful for PhD candidates.

Indeed, I think we could add some useful questions as the following.

1. Why you selected all African countries? Why didn't you select specific country as case study?
2. Did you find differences in circumstances of African countries that effected on your case study?
3. How you nominated African entrepreneurs for interview? Did you consider geographical spread of interviewees?
4. How did you examine individual, economic, social, cultural, technological, and political factors?
5. You talk about future case studies on successful African entrepreneurs, what are your criteria to nominate them?

Best regards.
